PITTSBURGH — The Center for Organ Recovery & Education (CORE) has recognized 24 West Virginia-based hospitals with the West Virginia Governor's Award for Life 2013.

The awards ceremony took place during the West Virginia Hospital Association's annual meeting Thursday at The Greenbrier Resort in White Sulphur Springs.

The award recognizes area hospitals that have been successful in supporting organ, tissue and cornea donation within their own health care facilities and have achieved increased donation rates as a result.

Local hospital recognized included: Stonewall Jackson Memorial Hospital in Weston, United Hospital Center in Bridgeport and West Virginia University Hospitals in Morgantown.
